OCTOBER 2025 ISSUE

As the seasons shift and the holidays draw near, it's a natural time to reflect on the people and places that bring us joy, purpose, and a sense of belonging. For many, Tellico Village is one of those places.

This time of year especially highlights the heart of Tellico Village. Whether it's a morning on the golf course, a holiday gathering with friends, or volunteering for a meaningful cause, the spirit of community shines brightly.

Tellico Pulse was created to reflect that spirit—to celebrate the people, places, and events that make this community truly special. Through every story and spotlight, we aim to strengthen your connection to the traditions and character that make Tellico Village unique.

Warmest wishes for the season,

Louisiana in East Tennessee

Modeled after a historic plantation in Louisiana, Castleton Farms offers a unique, luxurious escape right here in scenic East Tennessee.

“The Castleton Manor – our house — came before Castleton Farms, and it was built in 1995,” explained Danyelle McGrath, Castleton Farms Executive Director. “It’s a replica of the Houmas House, and the lady that had it built just loved that mansion. So this is a smaller, downsized version of it, but they look pretty identical.”

After purchasing the property in 2005, owners Dr. Meade and Kathleen Edmunds then turned Castleton Farms, 150 Cedar Grove Road, into a whimsical venue for weddings, corporate gatherings and other special events.

“It started out just primarily weddings, but now we do everything from group and corporate events to holiday parties,” McGrath said, adding that all events provide access to the property’s head chef, Robert Allen. “We have a private chef that used to be the executive chef at Citico’s Restaurant at WindRiver... He’s a phenomenal chef and he does all the food for us.”

Individuals and families can also book a room at the property. Weddings, however, continue to be the property’s most popular venture, as Castleton Farms offers brides exclusive use of the grounds.

“We don’t do multiple weddings or events, so they basically rent out the entire property,” said McGrath, noting that Castleton Farms offers five different ceremony sites and two reception locations for brides to choose from. “One of the ceremony spots, probably the most popular one, is our vineyard. We grow muscadine grapes, and it’s just a really popular spot.”

Other ceremony sites include the Southern gardens and mystical woodland locations. For receptions, McGrath said the property offers a large open air pavilion or a restored equestrian barn. All locations can accommodate parties of up to about 350 guests.

“Our property is absolutely breathtaking, so people are blown away by all of these sites,” she said.

In addition to its natural beauty, Castleton Farms also sets itself apart from similar properties by easing the planning process for brides.

“The service that we provide is definitely unlike most other places,” said McGrath. “We do full wedding planning and design in house, and we walk couples through everything step-by-step... It’s a real structured process.”

From budget planning to booking vendors, Castleton Farms' experienced team handles it all.

"We have a big planning experience day where we provide breakfast and lunch, and they get to come in, and all of their vendors meet them here on site," McGrath continued. "And it's just kind of a giant brainstorming session where we're able to kind of nail down all the details."

The team even helps unload and park vehicles on the weekend of the big day while guests enjoy cocktails, and takes care of all the set-up and decorating before the ceremony. Representatives are also onsite to assist in the bridal suite.

"We have four rooms that we can rent out overnight, so a lot of times the bride and the bridesmaids will stay Friday night, and then the bride and groom will stay Saturday night," McGrath said, adding that spa services are also available at the property. "We're really trying to position ourselves more as a destination where people can come out and just spend the whole weekend here."

The property, for example, is currently in the process of installing hiking and biking trails. Cabins may also be put in at a later date.

"We're trying to really revamp a lot of stuff," said McGrath. "We have 110 acres, so we have lots of room and have some really exciting things coming up."

Garner stays true to her roots

In every way, Missy Garner truly loves her community.

The United Community Bank regional banking manager was born and raised in Loudon County, and graduated from Lenoir City High School.

Staying close to her roots, she remained firmly in the area, even as she married Todd Garner, and they welcomed two children, Ashley and Drew, and two grandchildren Kenley and Caroline.

“My family is my greatest joy,” she said.

She has been with UCB for 36 years and her current position has her overseeing the East Tennessee Region.

“I oversee all of the retail branches in the area,” Garner said, adding, “banking has always been my career path. I began United Community early in my professional life and have grown with the company.”

Beyond business, however, is Garner’s passion for community service.

She chairs the Loudon County Education Foundation and has been a board member “for several years.

“I enjoy being on this board because I love the fact that we are helping fund school grants and scholarships for Loudon County and Lenoir City Schools and funding programs like the Imagination Library,” she added.

Additionally, Garner volunteers her time with the Loudon County Chamber of Commerce.

“I have been affiliated with the Loudon County Chamber for years, [and] I am currently serving my second term on the board, in which I work with ambassadors and am on the Membership Committee,” she said.

“The Chamber has been a valuable part of my career, giving me opportunities to development my customer base and build lasting relationships.”

Overall, Garner makes sure her volunteer priorities are consistent.

“I am passionate about my community and committed to supporting growth, education, and opportunities for families in Loudon County,” she said. “Whether through my role at the bank or my work on local boards, I strive to make a positive impact.”

In what remains of her spare time, Garner said she enjoys “spending time with my family and friends.

“My husband and I also love camping whenever we get the chance - it’s one of our favorite ways to relax and recharge.”

The Combat Quilter

Helping heal others and himself

After almost a decade spent quilting to keep his combat demons at bay, Andrew Lee, better known in some circles as “The Combat Quilter,” is following God’s direction to bring comfort and help others heal, too.

The 24-year U.S. Army veteran and Loudon County resident saw two tours of duty in Iraq in 2006 and 2009, and, once state-side, “tried many different ways to find comfort from his Post Traumatic Stress Disorder,” he stated on his website.

“War causes many things we struggle with; fear of loud noises, difficulty sleeping, readjusting to normal life, and emotional numbness,” he continued.

As almost a happenstance, he said, “I began quilting in 2016 after my ex-wife stated, ‘We don’t do enough together.’”

On his website he relates, “On a random afternoon, I found myself checking the mailbox to find a flyer for a quilted table runner class at a local quilt shop. After a shopping trip to buy more fabric, we met the husband and wife team that sew ‘Quilts of Valor’ and I was invited to join their male quilt group.

“After several evenings sewing with these fine gentlemen, I completed my first quilt [and] awarded my first Quilt of Valor to a 93-year-old World War II veteran.”

He said this simple action “caused me to feel real, raw emotion; the first time truly feeling something after returning home. I became addicted to being able to feel something; other than anger and frustration.

“I then became committed to the cause, and since then, have awarded more than 500 Quilts of Valor” and one to almost every family member.

“I have also quilted over 1,000 Quilts of valor that others

One of Andrew Lee's numerous quilts includes this pixelated one, which he calls "Shock and Awe," depicting the raising of the American Flag on Iwo Jima.

have made. I have awarded quilts all over the United States, sometimes in a parking lot, someone's home, or at some grand ceremony.

"Since the journey has begun, I have spent time traveling and teaching many things — Lonestar, pixel quilts, quilted jackets, and bags. I am still [long arm quilting] for customers, and quilting for Quilts of Valor.

"Now that I have my trademark and am still navigating the quilting community to see what it is that I can do to help be 'a light to the world,' I am still sharing my story in attempts to convince people to find a hobby that allows them to escape their demons and find some happiness; whether it be gardening, wood working, baking, drawing, painting, cooking, anything that you can physically touch afterwards, releases some magic chemicals in your brain to allow you to feel accomplished and happy.

"Science [shows us] it's impossible to be mad, and happy at the same time."

Lee, who remains a Tennessee National Guard member, said throughout his journey, "I have met so many amazing people along the way, and am attempting to find a way to help others deal with PTSD through finding an outlet and a new purpose.

"For the longest time, I felt God was sprinkling pebbles along the ground, saying, 'Follow me.' Then, one day in prayer He shared an image that showed these pebbles were the filler for the stepping stones he has laid for me.

"I hope my 'Shock and Awe' quilt pays tribute to all those veterans struggling, and see that a hobby of some sort will help. My "We Stand United" quilt is dedicated to all those first responders, fire fighters, police officers, paramedics, nurses, and doctors that continue to struggle with the things they see and feel on a daily basis.

Additionally, "I hope people feel inspired by my artwork, and find a way to help those still fighting the daily battle with their demons."

He finds camaraderie with fellow quilters, including the Village Quilters as well as two small groups, Quilts of Valor and The Divas + 1. "I am the +1," he said. He spends many weekends taking part in quilting shows, most recently attending one in Houston, Texas.

Lee also has a unique fabric line, offering a curated batik collection and he "designed a Patriotic cotton collection which ships to stores in December.

"I am also in the process of designing a third cotton line which is more neutrals and earth tones," he added.

Pope's Garden Center

Longtime local staple acquires Meadow View, familiar faces remain

Longtime local staple Pope's Garden Center recently purchased Meadow View Greenhouse, taking over operations at 2858 U.S. Highway 11 in September.

"They had known owners Bob Washburn, Bob Pyle and Lisa Grugin from their years of working in the same industry," manager Amanda Insko said of the Pope family. "When Meadow View reached out to sell, they knew it would be the perfect, permanent location."

While the Lenoir City garden center is now owned by the Pope family, Insko, who's worked at Meadow View for the last seven years, said that all team members have remained through the transition.

"Customers should still see all the same friendly faces and expect the same knowledgeable staff," she said. "Our staff can answer disease/insect questions and give recommendations on what to plant and how to care for the plants. We also carry basic chemicals and fertilizers now."

Many Meadow View traditions will also remain, including the location's feline friends.

"The biggest Meadow View 'tradition' is our cats," Insko said. "All three cats have remained on staff, and they receive all the love and care they had before."

Pope's at Meadow View also plans to continue holding its annual Christmas Open House, which will be announced at a later date.

"We will still have the Christmas trees, poinsettias and holiday cactus as well," said Insko, noting that the greenhouse will be open and heated all throughout the winter. "After Christmas, we will have houseplants and other plants inside the greenhouse, so customers can still stop by and get their green therapy."

In the meantime, customers can enjoy Fall Fundays every weekend for the month of October, which will include face painting, pumpkin carving and pumpkin painting. Every Wednesday, the store will also have a "Wacky Wednesday" sale, along with regularly held "Scan and Save" sales.

Additionally, as a Pope's location, Meadow View now offers produce, most of which are grown locally at Greenback and Maryville farms.

"Right now we have over ten types of apples, onions, potatoes, cucumbers, okra and tomatoes," Insko said. "We also carry canned goods from Yoder's Country Market, an Amish Store in Bull's Gap, Tenn. We have lots of jams, jellies, pickles and pie fillings. We also carry local honey – both light (sourwood) and dark (wildflower)."

Pope's Garden Center first opened in Rockford in 1977. Along with the Meadow View location, the family-owned business also operates two other locations: Creekside, off Northshore Drive in Knoxville, Ginger's in Maryville.

"The Popes were very kind and gracious when they took over my 'baby,'" noted Lisa Grugin, previous owner of Meadow View. "They kept my staff, which meant the world to me, and they asked for my input. I appreciate that very much and wish them well!"

Southern Charm & Sweet Tea Boutique VENDOR & CRAFT FAIR

The local community has a Christmas shopping opportunity when Pilot Club of Lenoir City presents its 11th Annual Southern Charm and Sweet Tea Boutique Vendor & Craft Fair.

The event, which is free and open to the public, will take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 8, at The Venue at Lenoir City, 7690 Creekwood Park Blvd.

Vendors include women's and children's boutiques, T-shirts and custom items, jewelry and accessories, beauty and cosmetics, home and wellness, other crafters and food, as well as a few one-of vendors, such as pet accessories, travel group and a book publisher, according to Allison Sousa, membership division chair and past president.

Additionally, "most of the vendors have donated a door prize that the club will be selling tickets for," Sousa said. "Tickets are one for $5 or three for $10. Proceeds directly benefit the Pilot Club.

"Fifty percent of the vendor fees and all door prize ticket proceeds benefit the Pilot Club of Lenoir City to help fund its brain-health and brain-safety related programs in the community," she said.

This year, the Pilot Club, a civic service organization dedicated to community service efforts primarily focusing on protecting the brain, is celebrating its 70th anniversary, founded in 1955.

With its mission to "Do more. Care more. Be more," it provides a number of brain-related events and programs.

Among them are:

- Festival of Friends
- "Brain-minders"
- Special Olympics-area 22
- Various Alzheimers and stroke walks and fundraisers.
- Anchor Club
- Scholarships for graduating high school seniors.
- Assistance to special needs classrooms.
- Family resource centers
- Childfind
- Fantasy of Trees
- Loudon County Education Foundation

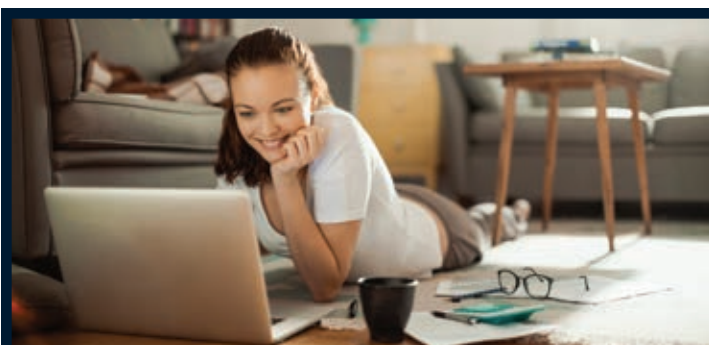

Additionally, Pilot Club of Lenoir City supports the work of numerous other organizations that work to improve the quality of life in the community through volunteer efforts and/or contributions.

With roughly 30 members, "members can do as much or as little as they'd like," Sousa said. They can choose to participate in programs close to their hearts, such as Special Olympics and Festival of Friends, or just help whenever they are available."

Pilot Club International's ABCs explain the club's purpose:

- Advocate leadership and service in youth and young adults.
- Promote brain safety and health and
- Care for and support families in times of need.

New Year's Day

POLAR PLUNGE

Local residents will again have the opportunity to immerse themselves in the icy waters of Tellico Lake while supporting a worthy cause during the East Tennessee Polar Plunge on New Year's Day.

A partnership of Visit Loudon County and Visit Monroe County, the annual event takes place each year on Tellico Lake, alternating between Loudon County and Monroe County boat ramps. This year, the event will be held at the Vonore Recreational Boat Ramp, 517 Fowler Street.

The county hosting the plunge also gets to select an area nonprofit to support. Last year, for example, the event at Poplar Springs Boat Ramp in Loudon raised more than $1,500 for T-BART, a local organization that seeks to provide free boating assistance on Tellico Lake.

"We chose T-BART to receive the 2025 Polar Plunge proceeds due to their great work and service to provide safety for boaters on Tellico Lake," explained Blair Sitzlar, Director of Tourism and Marketing at Loudon County Chamber of Commerce, noting that Visit Monroe County will award a different nonprofit in 2026.

In addition to the cold water plunge, attendees will have the chance to visit a s'mores station, enjoy penguin photos and even participate in a costume contest. Plungers of all ages are welcome to attend; however, participants 17 and under must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian. Children 12 and under will also be required to wear a life jacket, Sitzlar said.

While registration will be available between 11 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. on the day of the Polar Plunge—Thursday, Jan. 1—Sitzlar added that signing up prior to the event will help ease the process.

"Registration in advance is encouraged to assist with T-shirt count and preparation," she said.

Polar Plunge tickets are on sale now for $35 for adults and $25 for children at the Loudon County Chamber of Commerce website. 100% of the proceeds will go toward the nonprofit selected by Visit Monroe County.

Oakland United Methodist Church

Filling the needs of a community

Each month Oakland United Methodist Church fills a need in the Greenback community by providing free clothing, shoes and linens. Held from 9 a.m. to noon on the first Saturday of every month, the shop allows those in nearby rural areas to access gently used items at no cost.

“Over three years ago, we had a vision of providing clothes in the rural areas where a lot of urban areas already have clothing and giveaways,” explained Oakland United Methodist Church Pastor Betty Furches. “We’re in a very rural area and when we started, we didn’t know where we were going to get the clothes. We didn’t know how we were going to store them, and we didn’t know if anybody would come because we are out in the country and not on the main road.”

Plenty of clothes, however, have been donated to the initiative over the years, allowing the church to even provide much-needed clothing for families in Asheville and Erwin following the devastating floods last year.

“We were led to keep pursuing the cause, and it has grown and grown and grown,” said Furches. “Last Saturday, for example, we served 87 people in only three hours.”

As part of the initiative, Furches said she also tries to help watch over any children to ease the shopping process for their parents and grandparents.

“I run a children’s table and do a little lesson and have a craft for the children, so the mommies and the grandmothers can shop,” she said, noting that the church strives to respect the privacy of all attendees, as well. “We don’t ask your name. We don’t have where you live or what your circumstances are... Just come in and get what you need.”

While the next clothing drive is scheduled for Nov. 1, Furches added that anyone who has immediate needs can always make arrangements with the church.

“If someone needs clothes, like, if they’ve had a fire or a catastrophe, they can call and we’ll meet them so they don’t have to wait until the first of the month,” she said.

Those interested in donating items can access a drop box at the church, located at 234 Trigon Road, at any time.

“We just ask that the clothes be in bags, not just thrown in the drop box,” said Furches. “And the drop box is available seven days a week, 24 hours a day.”

Loudon County Chamber Hosts Successful Golf Tournament at Avalon

The Loudon County Chamber of Commerce hosted its annual Golf Tournament on Wednesday, September 18, at Avalon Golf and Country Club, drawing a record 27 teams for a day filled with networking, competition, and community support.

Blessed with perfect weather, golfers teed off for a fun and energetic round on Avalon's scenic course. The tournament not only provided an opportunity for local businesses and community members to connect but also served as a fundraiser to support area high school golf programs.

The team from LCUB emerged victorious, taking home top honors as the 2024 tournament champions. Along with the main event, participants enjoyed exciting contests throughout the day, including a putting green challenge and long drive demonstrations.

Professional long drive competitor Brady Torbitt brought extra excitement to the event, wowing the crowd with his powerful drives while raising funds in conjunction with the putting contest. Proceeds from these activities will benefit the golf teams at Greenback High School, Lenoir City High School, and Loudon County High School, ensuring that local students continue to have opportunities to learn, play, and grow through the game of golf.

"The golf tournament is one of our most anticipated events each year," said Chamber President Rodney Grugin. "It's not only a chance to enjoy a great day on the course, but it also allows us to give back to the youth of our community. We're thrilled to see so many teams and sponsors come together to make it a success."

The Chamber extends its gratitude to Avalon Golf and Country Club for hosting, to sponsors and volunteers for their support, and to all who participated. With record turnout and strong community impact, the 2024 Golf Tournament was truly a hole-in-one.

Loudon County Chamber plans Christmas events

Get into the Christmas spirit with the Loudon County Chamber of Commerce! The annual Christmas Breakfast and the annual Christmas Luncheon & Toy Drive are planned for early December.

2025 Chamber Christmas Breakfast to bring holiday cheer

The Loudon County Chamber of Commerce is delighted to announce the 2025 Annual Chamber Christmas Breakfast, hosted by United Community Bank. This much-anticipated holiday tradition will take place on Friday, December 5, from 7:30 to 9:00 a.m. at 257 Medical Park Drive.

The Chamber Christmas Breakfast has become a signature event for members and the community to gather, celebrate the season, and enjoy the spirit of fellowship. Guests can look forward to a delicious breakfast prepared by fellow Chamber members, showcasing the talent and generosity of local businesses.

Networking is at the heart of every Chamber event, and the Christmas Breakfast provides a relaxed and festive atmosphere to connect with colleagues, neighbors, and new friends. Whether you are a long-time member or attending for the first time, this gathering is the perfect way to strengthen business relationships while enjoying the warmth of the holiday season.

Adding to the magic of the morning, Santa and Mrs. Claus may make a special appearance, spreading cheer and creating memorable photo opportunities for guests. Their visit promises to delight both the young and the young at heart, bringing an extra sparkle to an already joyful event.

The Chamber encourages everyone to register early to secure their spot at this annual celebration. Registration is available online at www.loudoncountychamber.com.

Mark your calendars for December 5 and join us for a morning of food, fellowship, and festive fun. The Annual Chamber Christmas Breakfast is more than just a meal—it's a chance to celebrate the successes of the year, connect with the community, and welcome the holiday season together.

YPLC Christmas Luncheon & Toy Drive Set for Dec. 2

The Young Professionals of Loudon County (YPLC) invite the community to celebrate the season of giving at their Annual Christmas Luncheon & Toy Drive on Tuesday, December 2, 2025, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at La Quinta Inn & Suites in Loudon.

This festive gathering combines holiday cheer with a meaningful purpose—supporting the Loudon County Family Resource Center's Christmas for Angels program. Attendees are asked to bring a toy or donation as admission. All contributions will go directly toward providing wish list items for local children, ensuring they experience the joy of unwrapping gifts on Christmas morning.

The event offers the perfect blend of networking, community spirit, and holiday goodwill. The agenda includes lunch and networking from 11:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., followed by introductions and a special program featuring the Director of the Loudon County Family Resource Center from 12:15 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. The luncheon will conclude with closing remarks at 1:00 p.m.

"Christmas for Angels brings smiles to children who might otherwise go without on Christmas morning," said Blair Sitzlar. "This luncheon is more than just a holiday celebration—it's an opportunity for professionals to come together and make a lasting impact on families right here in our community."

Whether you're a longtime YPLC member, new to the organization, or simply looking for a way to give back this holiday season, the Annual Christmas Luncheon & Toy Drive is open to all.

For more information, visit the Loudon County Chamber of Commerce or YPLC online.
